Governor Black has always told his experience as a candidate for sen-in the matter and they believe that before it comes up as a practical question he will have indicated his intention to have no part in the campaign.

Republicans to Have Thirty-five.
Of the counties now officially canvassed the Republicans in all probability have elected representatives in Beaver, Ellis, Harper, Oklahoma, Okmulgee, Osage, Sequoyah, Tulsa and Wagoner counties and in the flatorial district of Creek and Tulsa, which with the twenty-five as shown in the official canvass of 79 of the 109 districts will give them thirty-five members in the lower house, with Dewey, Woodward and McClain counties in doubt.

Dear Sir: Since the election, and I view of the conflicting newspaper reports with reference to the carrying out or defeat of the several state questions submitted to the voters at the election, and particularly the amendment of the constitution on the question, I have feared that our newspapers would get this matter badly mixed and have therefore taken the time to write out my views specifically on the several questions, as follows:

First, State Agency Question.—Section 46 of the constitution provides for submitting the amendments thereto to a vote of the people, and "if a majority of all the electors voting at such election shall vote in favor of any amendment thereto, it shall thereby become a part of this constitution."

Under that provision, therefore, every amendment to the constitution must be carried by "a majority of all the electors voting at such election." It is therefore not sufficient that there may be more votes for the amendment than against it, but in order that an amendment shall become a part of the constitution it must affirmatively appear that it has been voted for by majority of all the electors, that is the voters—not the votes but the voters—who voted at the election to any candidate or upon any proposition at that election, and in this calculation the poll books showing what electors voted must be taken and considered, for the highest number of votes for any candidate might not show all of the voters, and in this computation un-voted ballots must be included in determining the number of electors and votes, for the proposition must be a majority of the total.

With this rule clearly fixed as it is in the constitution, the question then to be determined is whether any question submitted is to become a part of the constitution.

Senate Bill No. 41, which provided for the submission of the state agency question in Section 30 thereof, carries the emergency clause, which places the state agency in immediate operation. It also provided for its submission at the election to be held in 1908 and provided:

"If a majority of all the electors voting at said election shall vote in favor thereof, then said article one shall thereby, upon the official canvass and publication of the vote thereon, BE COME A PART OF THE CONSTITU-TION, UNLESS OTHERWISE PROVIDED BY LAW."

Thus clearly making this proposition to amend the constitution, and in order to carry it as a constitutional amendment, it must have been supported by a majority of all the electors who voted last Tuesday.

By this act are any other propositions as follows:

"But if a majority of all the electors voting thereon at said election shall vote against said article one, the same shall thereby, upon the official canvass and publication of said vote thereon, be repealed."

This clause, taken in connection with the emergency clause, means this:
That the act was put in force as an emergency measure without any vote of the people, and unless the electors, by a majority of all the electors voting thereon, vote against the measure, it still remains in force as an emergency legislative enactment. That is it remains in force as a legislative enactment out not as a part of the constitution if it carries by a majority of the votes cast on the question but not by a majority of all the electors voting at the election. If it is voted for by

at the election, then it is adopted as a constitutional amendment, and the century of this measure will be determined under this rule.

Second, The Torrens Land System.
Observing the rule above stated, no provision must be supported by "a majority of all the electors voting at such election" number three, submitting this proposition provided:

"That the following proposed amendment to the constitution of the state of Oklahoma shall be referred to the people for their ratification or rejection," etc. etc.

This provision, therefore, before it can have any operation, must be adopted as an amendment to the state constitution, and in order to be so must be supported by "a majority of all the electors voting at such election."

Third—Location of the capital.
This provision manifestly, if adopted at all, must be carried as an amendment to the state constitution, for the state constitution, Section 49, by ordinance irrevocable, accepted the terms and conditions of the enabling act of congress permitting the forming of a state government in Oklahoma, and that enabling act, in Section 2 thereof, provided:

"The capital of said state shall temporarily be at the city of Guthrie in the present Territory of Oklahoma, and shall not be changed therefrom prior to the first session of the legislature in the year 1913."

So, without discussing the question as to whether this provision can, under its terms of irrevocability, be amended at all, it is patent that the amendment proposed is and must be proposed as an amendment to the constitution, which its own language, is follows, states:

"That the following amendment to the constitution of the state of Oklahoma be and the same is hereby proposed."

And under the constitution, in order to be carried, must be supported by "a majority of all the electors voting at such election."

Therefore, in order that this amendment may be carried, it must have been voted for by a majority of all the electors, who voted at the election on Tuesday, and it will not be carried and cannot be declared carried upon its appearing that a majority of those who voted on the question voted "yes," but it must also appear that a majority of all who voted at Tuesday's election voted for the proposition.

Fourth—"New Jerusalem."
This is a question submitted under the referendum powers given in the constitution. It is neither
